On April 13, 2004 my wife and I began a 3000 mile vacation. We decided to take the old route 41 going north instead of I-75 because we were not in a hurry and wanted to see some of the beauty of "OLD" Florida.

As we approached Jennings from the south we were in a conversation about the scenery and I did not notice the lower speed limit sign. When I did notice the reduced speed I slowed down but it was too late and I was exceeding the speed limit. I saw the Florida Highway Patrol car turn around and I knew immediately that he would be coming after me so I pulled to the side of the street and parked.

He asked for my license and went back to his patrol car. In about 5 minutes he returned and gave me a warning notice. As a result I made sure that I did not exceed any speed limits for the rest of the trip.

I would like to compliment Trooper H K Weaver for the courteous and professional manner that he handled this situation.

Yours very truly
